THE FOUR PILLARS

OF A CONSCIOUS RELATIONSHIP

A framework for loving with more honesty, more courage, and more joy.

A FREE GUIDE FROM CHRISTINA WEBER AND WEDEEPEN

A LETTER FROM CHRISTINA

I grew up watching my parents struggle with each other.

My high school sweetheart cheated on me and lied about it.

Then came years of trial and error in New York City and Los Angeles.

No one ever taught me how to do love well.

Most of us never learn. Our schools cover history, chemistry, and calculus. They neglect nearly everything about healthy relationships.

So we guess. And when it hurts, we decide something is wrong with us. Or with them.

Nothing is wrong. You were just never taught.

In the fall of 2018, I discovered therapist Shelly Bullard's Four Pillars of a Conscious Relationship. Everything finally made sense.

Of everything I've studied, this is what I come back to again and again. Grounded. Simple. True in romance, friendship, and business.

It's how we practice at WeDeepen. And when I share it with someone I'm dating, I watch their whole nervous system relax.

Love is not something you find. Love is who you are. And that's what we're here to practice.

Your intimacy journey is your life story.
Let's make it a good one, together.

FOUNDER, WEDEEPEN

THE OLD WAY OF DOING LOVE IS BREAKING DOWN.

People are unsatisfied in love. And believe it or not, this is a good thing.

When a system breaks down, that's when it changes. The old model said: find the right person, meet each other's needs, live happily ever after. It works for a few years. Then it stops working, and we feel cheated.

Something better is emerging. We call it a conscious relationship.

> A conscious relationship has a purpose, and that purpose is growth.

Your growth. Growth as a couple. Growth that makes the world a better place. And you don't need a partner to begin. Partnered, dating, or solo, these pillars apply to every relationship you're in, starting with the one with yourself.

1. NO ATTACHMENT TO OUTCOME. GROWTH COMES FIRST.
2. OWN YOUR OWN SH*T.
3. ALL FEELINGS ARE WELCOME. NO INTERNAL PROCESS IS CONDEMNED.
4. THE RELATIONSHIP IS A PLACE TO PRACTICE LOVE.

1 NO ATTACHMENT TO OUTCOME. GROWTH COMES FIRST.

PRIORITIZE GROWTH

This doesn't mean you don't care what happens. You can still dream about where this goes.

It means you're more committed to growing than to making it "work."

When growth stops, we shrink to keep the peace. We bend to please. Soon love feels like a cage.

> We built the cage ourselves.

A conscious couple chooses growth, even when it's scary. Even at the risk of outgrowing each other. That's what keeps love alive.

Instead of asking "Will this work out?" ask "Who do I get to become here?"

PRACTICE THIS WEEK

Notice one place you've been making yourself smaller to keep things comfortable. Say one true sentence about it, out loud, to the person it involves.

JOURNAL

Where am I playing it safe in love, and what would growth ask of me instead?

2 OWN YOUR OWN SH*T.

Both partners agree to own their own sh*t: their wounds, reactions, and patterns.

We all carry wounds from the past. Closeness will find them.

At some point, you'll feel abandoned. Trapped. Rejected. Overlooked.

Those feelings are real. But your partner didn't cause them. They come from old wounds you brought with you. The good news: what's yours, you can change.

> Blame keeps you stuck. Ownership sets you free.

When something stings, pause and ask: What part of this is mine?

PRACTICE THIS WEEK

The next time you feel triggered, swap "You always..." for "When that happened, I felt... and it reminded me of..."

JOURNAL

What feeling keeps showing up in my relationships, and when did I first feel it?

3 ALL FEELINGS ARE WELCOME. NO INTERNAL PROCESS IS CONDEMNED.

There's room to feel anything. Jealousy. Desire. Insecurity. Grief. Fantasies you've never said out loud.

And there's room to share them.

What your partner shares may trigger the heck out of you. You let them be honest anyway, because you'd rather know them than keep them comfortable.

Honesty without blame is magnetic.

Radical honesty is how we finally feel known, seen, and truly understood.

PRACTICE THIS WEEK

Share one feeling you've been editing out. Start with: "Something I haven't said yet is..." When it's your turn to listen, just say thank you.

JOURNAL

What feeling do I judge most in myself, and what might it be asking for?

4 THE RELATIONSHIP IS A PLACE TO PRACTICE LOVE.

In every moment, with every person.

We treat love like a destination. We chase the peak feeling, and when it fades, we think we failed.

Love is a practice. Of acceptance, presence, forgiveness. It shows up in your hello. In your patience on a hard day. In staying open when it's easier to shut down.

Keep asking: What would love do here?

The answer is different every time. That's the adventure.

And like any practice, it gets better with company.

PRACTICE THIS WEEK

Once a day, before you react, ask "What would love do here?" Then do the smallest version of the answer.

JOURNAL

Where in my life is love asking me to show up more fully?

PROACTIVE FORMULA

FIVE STEPS FROM REACTION TO LOVE

STEP 1 | AN OBSTACLE SHOWS UP.

You feel it in your body first. A tight chest, a hot face. Every hard moment is a chance to grow.

STEP 2 | YOUR REACTION IS THE REAL WORK.

The obstacle isn't the other person or what happened. It's your response to it.

STEP 3 | PAUSE. BREATHE.

Hold back the urge to blame, lash out, or shut down. Restraint is a superpower.

STEP 4 | ASK FOR INSIGHT.

Turn inward, or upward. Your higher self, the Light, God, love itself. Ask: what am I here to learn?

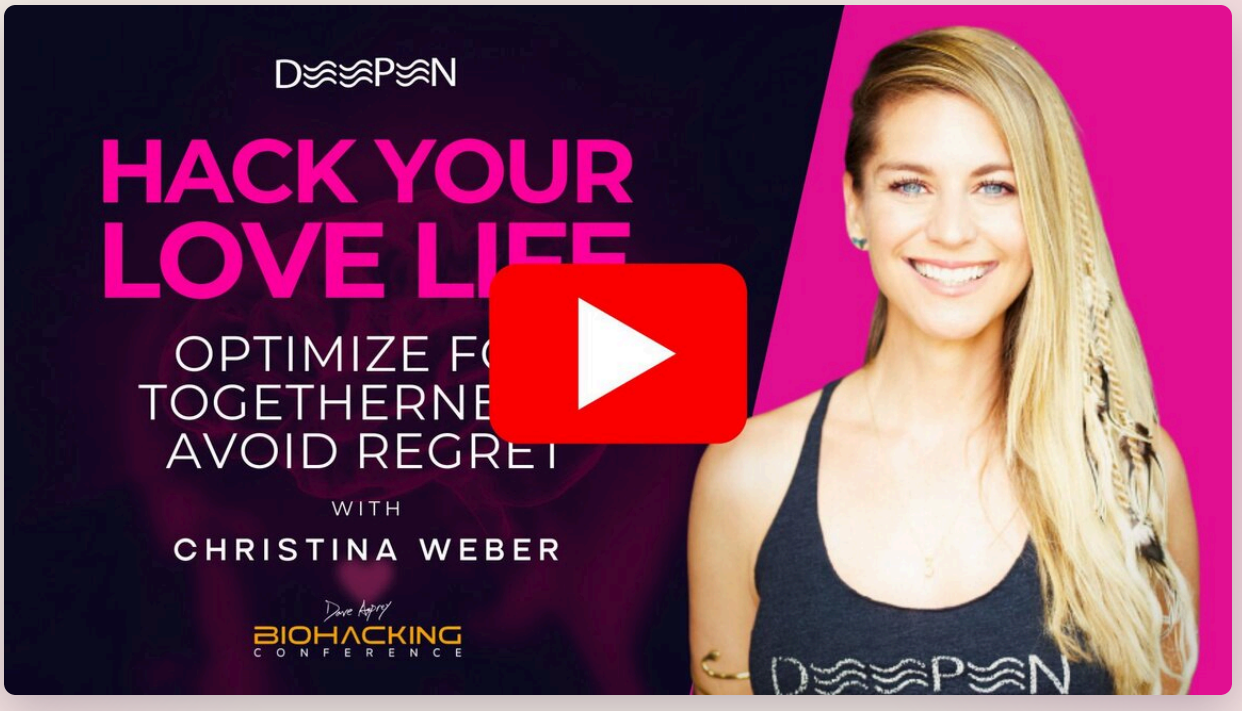

STEP 5 | RESPOND WITH LOVE, NOT FEAR.

Take one conscious action that matches what you just learned. This is Pillar 2 in action.

SEE THE PILLARS IN ACTION.

In my Biohacking Conference talk, Hack Your Love Life, I share the stories behind these pillars and tools you can use tonight.
